

ABU Pimpel 2 service

This is the fancier model of the Pimpel 1, another ice fishing rod. The rod in this case is plastic material (as opposed to metal wire), and the reel is a multiplier (i.e. has gears, unlike the Pimpel 1). It is still a two piece outfit and breaks down for easy storage. Like the Pimpel 1 it is also very simple to service.

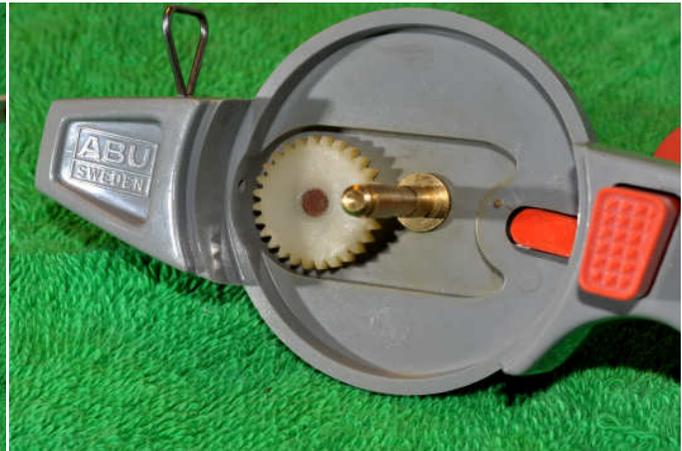

A lever on the spool allows it to be removed—simply push the lever to one side and the spool lifts off. The pinion gear is fixed to the bottom of the spool and is brass, note that the main gear is plastic.

Remove the handle nut and handle. There is a c-clip on the shaft for the main gear holding it in the body. Remove this and the main gear can be removed from the other side. Note the copper washer on top of the main gear.

To access the anti reverse mechanism remove the two screws on the metal plate and then remove the plate.

The anti reverse mechanism simply lifts out. Check that the spring is in good order-give a light coating of grease and then replace. Give everything a thorough clean and then reassemble. Add some oil to the shaft of the main gear and then replace in the body. Fix in place with the c-clip and then replace the handle and handle nut.

Add some grease to the teeth on the main gear and some oil to the spool shaft. Replace the spool on the body and you're finished-very quick and simple!

©Tim Parratt 2010